Wrap-up. Fairgoers enjoy last Capital Ex

From the new roller-coaster to the cricket pizza, there was no shortage of things to try at Capital Ex this year.

Several changes were made to this summer's fair and many Edmontonians took notice.

Samantha Willoughby, 25, said the fireworks show was much better this year. She also enjoyed the food and new attractions, and noticed there were a lot more people at the fair this year than in previous years.

"I love it. It's fun. I honestly get really excited for this time of year," said Willoughby, who brought her three-year-old daughter, Lilly, to the fair for the second year in a row.

Grace Villeneuve, 11, said she and her two sisters were having a lot of fun, especially with their front-of-theline passes.

Their mother agreed.
"The front-of-the-line passes make it worth it, even though it's still pricey. There is no point standing in line for three hours, just for one ride," said Victoria Villeneuve, who has been bringing her daughters to the exhibition for the past four years.

She said this year was special because the girls had graduated to the big kids'

"It's a fun day for the kids just to be kids," she said.

Richard Andersen, president and CEO of Northlands, said attendance has been great this year. He said he has received positive feedback from fairgoers on everything from the shows and exhibits to the rides and even the food.

"It's about progress for us," he said, "and trying to understanding what Edmontonians really want and then building on that."

Edmontonians have spoken and they have chosen K-Days as the official name for their summer fair.

Hundreds of people cheered when the moniker — a shortened version of Klondike Days — was announced on Sunday afternoon at the Edmonton Expo Centre. In a landslide victory, K-Days polled 38,762 out of the 51,160 votes cast in the Northlands Name Your Fair contest.

Chad Willsey, the man behind the winning name, says he was surprised by the overwhelming support for K-Days

"Initially I was surprised," he said. "As soon as we heard the public speak, it became very clear that Klondike Days was something people resonated with from the past and K-Days is what they want it to be now."

Andersen said it is uncertain whether the Klondike theme itself would be reintroduced to the fair. The plan was the name would be K-Days, but the theme would change every year.

He said over the next 60 days the Northlands team plans to evaluate all the public feedback to see how best to proceed with the fair next year.

The daughter of Ronald Smith. one of two Canadians on death row in the United States, sees a small glimmer of hope that her father's life will be spared after her family met with Montana's governor earlier this month.

"I don't want to get my hopes up too high, but at least I know whatever decision comes down it's going to be a fair one. It's going to be from (the governor's) heart," said a tearful Carmen Blackburn in an interview with The Canadian Press.

Montana Gov. Brian Schweitzer at his office in Helena in which they pleaded for Smith's life. Smith had a clemency hearing earlier this year and the panel recommended it be denied. The final decision, however, rests with the governor. Schweitzer's term in office runs out early next year.

Smith and his friend Rodney Munro, both Canadians, were hitchhiking in Montana in 1982 when they caught a ride with Harvey Madman Jr. and Thomas Running Rabbit, both members of the Blackfeet Nation in Montana. Drunk and high on drugs, the Canadian men marched Madman and Running Rabbit into the woods and shot and stabbed them to death.

Smith, originally from Red Deer, rejected a plea deal and asked for the death penalty before later changing his mind. Munro pleaded guilty to aggravated kidnapping and was returned to Canada and released from jail in 1998

Blackburn says Schweitzer told Smith's family that he was undecided, but didn't think it was fair for Smith to be executed when Munro was paroled and free to live his life in Canada. He also indicated Smith may be a different man. "He was jotting notes while we were talking. I couldn't read all of them — there was just the one I could read very well and that was the word fair," said Blackburn.

"You could see that word fair - his eyes kept going back to it and going back to it and he's really struggling with this. He is a man who is going to do what he wants, what he feels is right. I don't think anyone could force him one way or another."

In an interview with The Canadian Press last month, Munro broke 30 years of silence and credited Smith with saving his life. He said he was given a plea deal and allowed to come home because Smith admitted to the murders.

Regime, rebels fight for control of commercial hub

Syria. Opposition calls for international support, regime blames Muslim countries for destruction

Syrian tanks and artillery pounded rebel-held neighbourhoods in the commercial hub of Aleppo on Sunday in a bid to retake control as President Bashar Assad's regime accused regional powerhouses Saudi Arabia, Qatar and Turkey of trying to destroy the country.

Activists say opposition fighters control large swathes of territory across Syria's largest city. The government has been struggling for a week to beat back their assault and stem the tide of recent rebel advances in the civil war.

The head of the main opposition group, the Syrian National Council, called for international help in arming the rebels to face the regime's heavy weaponry porticularly tooks.

"If the international community cannot act, they should support the opposition with anti-tanks missiles and anti-aircraft rockets," Abdel Basset Sida told the Gulf News during a stopover in Abu Dhabi. "We seek international supporters to arm our uprising against the regime."

Saudi Arabia and Qatar have expressed willingness to help fund the rebels and they are believed to be funnelling money through Turkey to the opposition, which is using it to purchase arms and equipment.

Syrian Foreign Minister Walid al-Moallem railed against interference by the region's Sunni powers. He accused them of supporting the rebels at the behest of Israel.

Iraq. Bombings, shooting kill 7

Two bombings and a driveby shooting Sunday killed seven Iraqi police in a former al-Qaida stronghold in the western part of the country, authorities said, another sign of the militants' resurgence.

The attacks before dawn around the city of Fallujah also wounded nine police. They come a week after the leader of al-Qaida in Iraq announced a deadly campaign to reclaim parts of the country the Sunni insurgency was forced to leave before the U.S. military pulled out last December.

After the attacks Sunday, security forces sealed off all roads leading into Fallujah and imposed a curfew on the city, 65 kilometres west of Baghdad.

Officials said two explosives-packed cars blew up within a few minutes of each other in Fallujah and the nearby village of Karma as security patrols drove by, killing three policemen. Fifteen minutes later, a gang of gunmen fired on a Karma police station, killing four. The gunmen escaped.

The casualties were confirmed by local hospital officials. All spoke on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to release the information to reporters.

Al-Qaida in Iraq is seeking to make a comeback in Anbar and other Sunni areas, launching dozens of deadly attacks in the days since last weekend's statement by Islamic State of Iraq leader Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi that the militant group would push back into its former strongholds.

Nodding head disease perplexes researchers

Epidemic? Mysterious illness has afflicted 3,000 children in Uganda; communities and scientists are looking for answers

Augustine Languna's eyes welled up and then his voice failed as he recalled the drowning death of his 16-yearold daughter. The women near him looked away, respectfully avoiding the kind of raw emotion the head of the family rarely displayed.

'What is traumatizing us," he said after regaining his composure, "is that the well where she died is where we still go for drinking water.

Joyce Labol was found dead about three years ago. As she bent low to fetch water from a pond a half mile from Languna's compound of thatched huts, an uncontrollable spasm overcame her. The teen was one of more than 300 young Ugandans who have died as a result of the mysterious illness that is afflicting more more children across northern Uganda and in pockets of South Sudan.

The disease is called nodding syndrome, or nodding

Beginning Monday, Uganda hosts a four-day international conference on nodding syndrome that health officials believe will lead to a clearer understanding of the mysterious disease.

World Health Organization officials in Uganda said the conference will be attended by about 120 scientists from all over the world.

head disease, because those who have it nod their heads and sometimes go into epi-leptic-like fits. The disease stunts children's growth and destroys their cognition, rendering them unable to perform small tasks. Some victims don't recognize their own parents.

Ugandan officials say some 3,000 children in the East African country suffer from the affliction. Some caregivers even tie nodding syndrome children up to trees so that they don't have to monitor them every minute of the day.

Scientists are working to find the cause of the disease, which is stretching health-care capacities in Uganda and testing the patience of a community looking for answers as to why it attacks mostly children between the ages of 5 and 15, why it's concentrated in certain communities, and whether it is contagious.

The U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. which has been investigat-ing nodding syndrome at the request of the Ugandan government, has ruled out 36 possible causes since 2009 and is carrying out a clinical trial for potential treatments. In mid-February the lead investigator said on a visit to Uganda that there is now "clear evidence that this is an epidemic" about which very little is known.

Researchers are focusing on the connection between nodding syndrome and the parasite that causes river blindness, said Scott Dowell, director of CDC's Division of Global Disease Detection and Emergency Response.

But it is not yet clear there are any links. Onchocerciasis, or river blindness, has been around for a long time, but nodding syndrome is somewhat new, he said. "And we also know that there are many parts of the world that have onchocerciasis but have no evidence of nodding syndrome.

Thousands in Hong Kong protest Chinese 'patriotism' classes

Growing discontent.

Police estimate 32,000 people turned out for march against a curriculum they see as brainwashing

Tens of thousands of people, including teachers and parents pushing strollers, took to Hong Kong streets Sun-day to protest the upcom-ing introduction of Chinese patriotism classes they fear will lead to brainwashing, the latest sign of growing discomfort over Beijing's influence in the semi-autonomous territory.

Students and pro-democracy activists were among those who marched to the Hong Kong government's headquarters to protest the new curriculum, which authorities are encouraging schools to begin using when classes resume in September.

They fear the classes will be used to brainwash children into supporting China's Communist Party. The government has denied that and says they are aimed at building Chinese national pride.

The controversy flared up after reports emerged that pro-Beijing groups published a booklet for use in classes that extolled the virtues of one-party rule.

The protest is the latest sign of growing discontent in Hong Kong over mainland China's increasing influence 15 years after the freewheel-

Quebec gearing up for summer election call

Preparations were in full swing over the weekend for a possible Quebec election, with the parties unveiling new candidates, slogans and even a bus for a campaign that is all but officially underway.

Premier Jean Charest took aim at the upstart Coalition For Ouebec's Future as he announced three new candidates on Sunday, providing a glimpse at an issue he'll likely hammer away at in the coming weeks the Coalition's promise to put the issue of Quebec independ-

The candidates were former members of the Action democratique du Quebec, which was absorbed by the Coalition earlier this year. One candidate said she didn't want to run for the new party, headed by former Parti Quebecois cabinet minister Francois Legault, because he remained a sovereigntist at heart.

Legault's Coalition wants to set aside the independence question for 10 years, but he's been dogged by critics who say he should take a clearer position on the question. Kamal Lutfi, one the party's own former candidates, made headlines this week when he called on Legault to get off the fence on an issue mental to Quebec politics.

In his three election victories, Charest has used similar tactics against the PQ. He has repeatedly attacked the party for hiding its plans to break up Canada as soon as it's elected.

Legault was also busy Sunday, announcing two new candidates, along with his campaign slogan and a bus. "We know Premier Charest decided to call an election in summer because he doesn't want a discussion," he said.

Opinion polls show the Coalition in a distant third behind the Liberals and the PQ. But the Coalition is expected to play an import-ant role in any outcome and could split the vote with Liberals, costing Charest's party seats in some ridings.

"We're not afraid of having a discussion, and we'll drive across the province on our bus to have one." THE CANADIAN PRESS

RCMP names green radicals as a threat

Greenpeace singled out. Denying it uses violence, organization says report is just Harper government

propaganda

There is a "growing radicalized environmentalist faction" in Canada that is opposed to the country's energy sector policies, warns a newly declassified intelligence report.

The RCMP criminal intelligence assessment, focusing on Canadian waters, cites potential dangers from environmental activists to offshore oil platforms and hazardous marine shipments.

The report drew a sharp dismissal from Greenpeace — a prominent environmental group singled out in the document — which suggested it could simply be an effort by security authorities to tell the Harper government what it wants to hear.

The Canadian Press obtained a heavily censored copy of the September 2011 threat assessment of marine-related issues under the Access to Information Act.

"The Canadian law enforcement and security intelligence community have noted a growing radicalized environmentalist faction within Canadian society that is opposed to Canada's energy sector policies," says the report.

"Greenpeace is opposed to the development of Canada's Arctic region, as well as Canada's offshore petroleum industry."

Yossi Cadan, campaigns director for Greenpeace Canada, said while group members sometimes trespass on private property to make their point, the group shuns violence. CANADIAN PRESS

Free tickets help fill early Olympic events

Local students and troops are getting free tickets to the London Games after blocks of prime seats were left empty at some of the Olympic venues, organizing chief Sebastian Coe said Sunday.

Coe responded to criticism after the first full day of competition by predicting that seats left unused, largely by Olympics and sports officials, will stop being an issue as the Games move through the preliminary rounds.

"It is obvious, some of those seats are not being used in the early rounds so that's why we put the military in there. That's why we have students and teachers in there," Coe said at a briefing.

He declined to blame

Olympic sponsors, whom he had earlier promised to "name and shame" if they did not use their allocations.

Sponsors including Coca-Cola and Visa defended how they used their quotas, which amount to eight per cent of the 8.8-million available tickets, Coe said.

The issue is sensitive for Olympics organizers and fans after hundreds of thousands of people failed to get tickets in an initial public ballot.

Coe said he was "jammed in shoulder" with Olympic officials at swimming finals on Saturday evening, and pointed to record crowds lining the men's road race route, and for rowing events. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Changing direction. Iran is now telling its people to have more children

Iran's got a new message to parents: Have more babies.

In a major reversal of once far-reaching family planning policies, authorities are now slashing its birth-control programs in an attempt to avoid an aging demographic similar to many Western countries that are struggling to keep up with state medical and socialsecurity costs.

The changes — announced in Iranian media last week came after Supreme Leader Ayatollah Ali Khamenei described the country's wideranging contraceptive services as "wrong." The independent Shargh newspaper quoted Mohammad Esmail Motlaq, a Health Ministry official, as saving family planning programs have been cut from the budget for the current Iranian year, which began in March. It's unclear, however, if the appeals for bigger families will translate into a population spike. Doorman Abbas Kazemi on why he's not riage or keeping their families small.

Ali Reza Khamesian, a columnist whose work appears in pro-reform newspapers, said the change in policy also may be an attempt to send a message to the world that Iran is not suffering from sanctions imposed over the nuclear program that the West suspects is aimed at producing weapons - something Tehran denies.

Abbas Kazemi, a doorman in a private office building, said he cannot afford to have more than two children with his salary of about $220 (4.2 million rials) a month.

"I cannot afford daily life," he said. "I have to support my wife and two children, as well as my elderly parents."

Rating of Canadian banks drops from stable to negative

Standard & Poor's Ratings Services has cut its outlook from stable to negative on seven Canadian banks, over concerns about unsustainably high home prices and consumer-debt levels, according to published reports

Smartphones. RIM drops from top-five ranking

Canada's own BlackBerry maker Research in Motion has fallen out of the top-five ranking of smartphone makers based on market share, research group IDC said Friday.

"Research in Motion's BlackBerry unit decline continued lest quarter receiping."

"Research in Motion's BlackBerry unit decline continued last quarter, reaching levels not seen since 2009," it said in the report.

"Like Nokia, RIM is a company in transition. Smartphones running on its new platform, BB 10, will be released later this year. Until then, results like these may be a sign of things to come."

RIM has been working to turn around operations after watching its market share eroded by the growing popularity of Apple's iPhone and smartphones running Google's Android operating system.

The company hopes the debut of its BlackBerry 10 operating system and a new line of BlackBerry smartphones will help keep its subscribers from defecting to other devices, particularly in the United States.

CAPITAL EX NEEDS MORE THAN A NAME CHANGE

URBAN COMPASS

Capital Ex has come and gone and taken its tragically boring name with it. I say good riddance.

If Northlands paid someone to come up with this feeble attempt at branding, it should be demanding its money back. To say that the name did not resonate with Edmontonians is an understatement. However, the list of potential new names is, with one exception, just as feeble.

If K-Days makes it to the top of the list, it should come

What's to like?

The problem with the event is that it lacks soul and focus. If nothing but the name changes, the lack of engagement of Edmontonians will continue and in a few more years we will again be looking at another name change.

as no surprise.

Though our connection to the Klondike gold rush is tenuous at best, at least it is something that people can understand and get behind.

The only reason it didn't survive is that it was not promoted and explained to our youth and all the newcomers to our city. It didn't die a natural death; it was killed by a lack of effort on the part of the city and Northlands to keep it vibrant and relevant as the city grew and changed.

If Northlands thinks renaming the annual event is going to get national attention that enables it to draw larger and larger crowds à la the Stampede, it's sorely mistaken.

The problem with the event is that it lacks soul and focus. If nothing but the name changes, the lack of engagement of Edmontonians will continue and in a few more years we will again be looking at another name

It had been a while since I had gone to the event. (I say event because I am not sure quite what to call it. It seems to be neither fish nor fowl.) The first thing I encountered was a 20-minute lineup for tickets.

Surely there has to be a better way to get people into the grounds than the way Northlands is currently using. Even people who already had tickets were left to languish in line before someone came along and told them they could go directly to the turnstiles. Definitely not the way to increase business.

Once inside, I was confronted with the same things I saw the first time I went 35 years ago. If the rides, hucksters, tired games and the purveyors of really bad food were removed, there would be virtually nothing to look at. Northlands needs to do a whole lot more than change the name of the event. It needs to rethink what it is meant to be in the 21st century.

Tough competition for network during the Games

The International Olympic Committee says social media users caused problems for traditional broadcasters during the first big event of the London Olympics.

Television viewers watching the men's cycling on Saturday got little information about the riders' location and timings on the 250-kilometre road course.

Broadcasters blamed the Olympics Broadcasting Service for the glitch with GPS signals.

IOC spokesman Mark Adams says the broadcasting service was jammed by 'hundreds of thousands' of people sending texts, pictures and updates to Twitter and Facebook.

Adams acknowledges that "we should have foreseen that."

The problem appeared to be solved in time for the women's road race on Sunday.

An Arnold-free Total Recall

New movie. The director discusses updating the Schwarzenegger hit — and reteaming with wife Kate Beckinsale.

NED Ehrbar

Director Len Wiseman has been working for quite some time on a remake of the 1990 Arnold Schwarzenegger vehicle Total Recall, based on a short story by Philip K. Dick. Of course, getting out from the shadow of a Schwarzenegger hit is no small feat, but Wiseman was up for the challenge. He sat down with Metro at San Diego ComicCon to talk about his film's all-star cast — including his wife, Kate Beckinsale.

The actress says that before Justin Timberlake proposed, she didn't expect to ever get married.

• Engaged. The 30-yearold actress told The Associated Press on Friday that she feels wonderful about the engagement. Biel and Timberlake, 31, reportedly became engaged late last year but rarely speak publicly about their relationship. Biel called the engagement "wonderful. It's actually not anything I ever really thought was going to happen."

You've been at this production for a while.

It's been two and a half years. Your wife and star, Kate Beckinsale, has said that living with you has proven that the director gets absolutely no time off.

She's very aware of it. It's one of the downsides. She sees how limited my time actually is, so I've often heard her say that from an actor's point of view, you want to be a little bit more selfish with your own questions and things, but if anything because we're married I find that she doesn't come to me as much as she generally would with another director because generally she feels for how incredibly overwhelmed I am with other things.

So, who would win in a fight between Jessica Biel and Kate Beckinsale?

It's a question that I can't ask. (laughs) To be really honest, if you knew these girls personally, they're very well-equipped with the action, just in terms of ability. And they're both quite vicious when they get into it. It was like having two stunt players on the movie, so we rarely brought a stunt person in for the fight stuff. I don't know who would win. I would really like to see it (laughs). If we just hold some kind of forum, I think it would do very well.

How do you decide which project will take over your life next?

I personally think you have to really, really fall in love with them. The best litmus for me is would I be upset if I passed on this and somebody else did it? I don't think you can go into any project that you feel a little bit iffy about because the minute that you do that — and I have done that before on a project — the amount that it asks of you is so great that you'll just start to break under how overwhelming it is. It's amazing how much adrenaline and passion can keep you awake, keep you going on a project.

In the original Philip K. Dick story, the main character is more of an everyman, something Arnold Schwarzenegger couldn't really pull off.

That was really a focus of what I wanted to do with the character.

At least for me, when I saw Total Recall in high school, I was going to go see an Arnold Schwarzenegger movie. I didn't know who Phillip K. Dick was. Arnold is already a superhuman-looking character from the beginning, so I was really wanting to create a character that felt a bit more accessible just as an everyman that turned into a superspy so that you could have more of that change.

Of course, Colin Farrell is by no means schlubby, though. No. no.

But he was very thin, though. He definitely got himself ripped and in shape for the super-spy aspect of the character.

He was a great get because I needed somebody that was vulnerable and somebody that you connect with — but then when it became time to be that superhero kind of character and be tough and daring and all that, that you really bought that with the character, too. I think Colin really does occupy both of those qualities.

Cook over the line with Batman shooting quip

Dane Cook learned the hard way that a week is probably not enough time to wait before making light of a tragedy. The comedian has taken to Twitter to apologize for making a joke about the Aurora, Colo., movie theater shooting, during which 12 people were killed when a gunman opened fire at a Dark Knight Rises screening.

"So I heard that the guy came into the theater about 25 minutes into the movie. And I don't know if you've seen the movie, but the movie is pretty much a piece of crap," Cook said during his set at L.A.'s Laugh

Factory, according to Daily Caller.

"I know that if none of that would have happened, pretty sure that somebody in that theater, about 25 minutes in, realizing it was a piece of crap, was probably like, 'Ugh, f-ing shoot me.' News of the joke caused an immediate uproar, prompting Cook to post to Twitter, "I am devastated by the recent tragedy in Colorado and did not mean to make light of what happened. I made a bad judgment call with my material last night and regret making a joke at such a sensitive time.

Kristen Stewart apologized for her "momentary indiscretion" with director Rupert Sanders, but it seems there is more to the story than the one-day fling that Us Weekly crashed last week.

According to Leopold Ross— the brother of Sanders' wife, Liberty Ross— the affair began last fall during the filming of Snow White and the Huntsman, which Sanders directed and Stewart starred in. "(Liberty) made some sacrifices for something she thought was worth it, now she knows, right?" Leopold tells UK newspaper The People. "Doubt it was worth it but it's life. It might actually make things better in the long run. She wasn't that happy for a while, but our family is close, she'll be all right." Pattinson, apparently, suspects Kristen is holding back. "Rob wants to have a man-to-man chat with Rupert to find out exactly what happened between him and Kristen," a source tells RadarOnline. Oh no, my child bullied...

Opinion ...another child with special needs, unknowingly. What would you do?

LINDSAY CROSS

My daughter is not a meanspirited child. I realize that every parent who has ever existed believes this and I don't care. My little girl is a sweet child.

That being said, she's also a kid and there are things that she doesn't understand or hasn't been exposed to yet. And the first time that she encounters something new, there's the possibility that her strong voice or curious nature can lead to difficult circumstances. This was one of those times.

Brenna has attended the same daycare since she was a month old. Her provider normally has about six or eight children at a time of varying ages. And one family that my daughter has grown up with has a daughter with special needs.

I'm not exactly sure what Sarah's specific medical diagnosis is (I've changed her name here). I know that she has physical limitations and wears a back brace.

She's in late elementary school but has the comprehension and speech of a toddler. Sarah is normally a sweet child who has a tendency to invade personal space and misunderstand her own strength, but generally just wants to make people happy.

really just wants to make people happy.

In the beginning, my daughter simply didn't understand that Sarah was different from other kids. When they were younger, it didn't matter.

Quote

"In the beginning, my daugher simply didn't understand that Sarah was different from other kids. This year, however, she became old enough to question the situation."

This year, however, my daughter finally became old enough to start questioning the situation

One day, while the kids were playing, my inquisitive girl started asking why Sarah wore a diaper, eventually saying: "You're too big for a diaper. Babies wear diapers, Sarah. You can't wear a diaper unless you're a baby."

Sarah's feelings were understandably hurt. She started crying. Brenna remained confused.

It's hard for children to understand the effect their words can have.

At home, we had a long talk about special needs and disabilities. But about a week later, she asked why Sarah "looked funny" when she ran. She asked why she played with baby toys.

My teacher mother advised me to explain that "everyone has special needs. Some are things that doctors and teachers can help us fix, and some things they can't."

I got ready for our next talk, armed with a new more explanatory strategy. I tried to keep my voice calm, so that I didn't sound angry or condemning. She got impatient with all of the explaining I was doing.

She suggested that we just draw her a card to say, "I'm sorry," and call it a day halfway through my planned lecture. I compromised by helping with the card but continuing the conversation as we coloured.

The good news is that my daughter hasn't had problems in a week. We'll have lots more talks about bullying with my daughter. It's a subject that no parent can afford to ignore.

But I have to admit, I never guessed that our first talk would cast my daughter as the aggressor.

Fifty Shades sex has some expecting

On the Web

New report shows girls more likely to be bullied in school

Will little Sophia and Jacob morph into baby Christian and Anastasia about nine months from now?

While it's impossible to declare a Fifty Shades of Grey baby boomlet, some moms and moms-to-be attribute their pregnancies to sex inspired by the erotic trilogy that went mainstream early this year.

One night on vacation in Florida was all it took for Betsy Bailey, a labour and delivery nurse, no less, in suburban Chicago. She's expecting baby number six, conceived soon after reading the steamy bondage love story.

"It was like one night alone," she laughed. "We went out to dinner and, you know, a little wine, a little stone crab and a little Christian Grey."

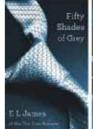

Bailey's No. 6 is due Christmas Day, her 42nd birthday. She and her husband always knew they wanted a big family, but they thought big would be four kids.

"We picked up our fifth in Mexico. He was a vacation baby as well," she joked. "We call him the worm at the bottom of the tequila bottle."

Christian and Ana aren't on her name list, though her great-grandmother's maiden name, Gray, had been a possibility — until now. "Now I don't think I could do it," Bailey said.

Brittany Woodard, 21, in Norfolk, Va., has a six-monthold son, Greyson, whose name has absolutely nothing to do with the books Woodard read while her military husband was away for four months.

New to the spicy genre, the stay-at-home mom wasn't trying for another baby so soon, but she was ready with "new ideas" in the boudoir department when her husband got home. She's due in February.

At BabyCenter.com, a large online community of moms and expectant moms, nearly 150 women have posted that their pregnancies are directly related to more baby-making activity inspired by the best-selling books that have sold 31 million copies in all formats.

That's amore! Potato salad gets the magic Italian touch

This year, take a basic vinegar potato salad to the next level by adding all the trimmings you'd typically expect on an Italian grinder. The funny thing is, some people like their grinders with vinegar, some prefer mayonnaise. And you can have it your way with this salad, too. If you'd prefer a creamy version, substitute 1/2 cup mayonnaise for the 1/4 cup of vinegar and 6 tablespoons of oil used for the dressing in this recipe. You'll still need 2 tablespoons of oil for the onions.

1. In a pot, combine sweet potatoes and russet potatoes. Add enough water to cover by 1 inch. Bring to a boil and cook until just tender, about 15 minutes. Drain and spread out on a rimmed baking sheet to cool.

2. In skillet over medium-high, heat 2 tablespoons of olive oil. Add onions and rosemary, then sauté until browned, about 15 minutes. Transfer onions to a bowl, then return skillet to heat. Add chopped salami and sauté until browned at edges and beginning to crisp, about 5 to 7 minutes. Add to onions.

Piercy learns to love golf course on his way to title

Golf. American wins Canadian Open by one shot at course that demanded 'boring golf'

As it turns out, there is nothing boring about a victory at golf's third-oldest championship.

Or a cheque for $936,000 US

Or a trip to the Masters. Scott Piercy learned to love Hamilton Golf and Country Club in Ancaster, Ont., just a little bit more Sunday while pulling off a comeback victory at the RBC Canadian Open. The man who entered the weekend bemoaning the "boring golf" he was forced to play on a classic layout ended up being all smiles when the trophy was presented.

"At the end of the week if the score is good, it is exciting," said Piercy. "So I'm pretty excited."

The Las Vegas native closed with a 3-under 67 to edge William McGirt (69) and Robert Garrigus (70) by a shot.

Those men spent the final day locked in a see-saw battle and each of them found their name atop the leaderboard at

Long ball ruins solid outing from Cecil

Home runs continue to be a problem for Toronto Blue Jays left-hander Brett Cecil.

This time it was a three-run shot by Jhonny Peralta in the second inning Sunday as the Detroit Tigers defeated the Blue Jays 4-1 to avoid a three-game sweep.

Peralta also hit a solo homer against reliever Joel Carreno in the ninth to back Doug Fister's eight strong innings.

The victory snapped Detroit's three-game losing slide, with the last two coming in Toronto, and ended the Blue Jays' three-game winning streak.

"I thought Brett did his job keeping us in the game, particularly after the threerun homer in the second. He settled down," Toronto manager John Farrell said. "I think overall in the series we pitched very well."

Diving pair get Canada on the board

Synchronized diving.

Heymans' medal haul reaches historic proportions after bronze win with partner Abel

Her career was forged over more than two decades of training, of six-hour sessions, of 80 dives a day, five days a week.

If Emilie Heymans decides to retire after the London Olympics, she's going out in fitting fashion.

The St. Lambert, Que., diver captured Canada's first medal of the Games with partner Jennifer Abel on Sunday, launching herself into the history books in the process.

The Canadians won bronze in the three-metre synchronized event, a result that makes Heymans the first female diver and first Canadian summer Olympian to reach the podium in four consecutive Olympic Games.

"I couldn't have ever imagined diving in four Games, or being in this position at 30," Heymans said

Heymans won silver in the 10-metre synchro in 2000, bronze in the same event in Athens in 2004, and a silver in the 10-metre individual event four years ago in Beijing.

Heymans and Abel had silver in their sights Sunday, sitting in second place behind Chinese world champions Minxia Wu and He Zi after the first dive. But they were jostled by television cameras when they were practising on the

Breaking through

A medal on Day 2 of full day of competition is good news for a Canadian team aiming for a top-12 finish overall, and takes some pressure off the rest of the squad.

Canada went seven days without a medal in Beijing before the men's rowing pair and wrestler Carol Huynh ended the drought on Day 8 with silver and gold, respectively. Wrestler Tonya Verbeek also added a bronze that day.

In 2004, Heymans and partner Blythe Hartley's bronze was the lone medal in the opening seven days.

pool deck before their second dive — a moment Heymans said burst their bubble of focus.

They were noticeably out of sync on the board in Dive 2 a forward dive in pike position, normally an easy feat for the duo — and fell to fifth place.

"I think both of us, in our head it was like: 'What's going on, what's going on?"
Heymans said. "But after we were able to calm down and come back to the competition and we know it's never over until the last dive."

Heymans and Abel, a 20-year-old from Laval, Que., battled back to win bronze with 316.80 points. Wu and Zi of China led from start to finish to take the gold with an overall score of 346.20. Americans Kelci Bryant and Abigail Johnston captured silver with 321.90.

Heymans, who is also competing in the individual threemetre springboard event in London, will decide her future following the Games.

She said she might dive one more year. It won't be an easy decision for a woman who has trained at least 20 hours a week since she was seven.

"Actually sport is my entire life, it's what I've been doing since I was six years old. I think I'm going to carry this baggage for the rest of my life," she said, meaning it in a good way.

A child of sporting parents dad Eric played soccer in Belgium, and mom Marie-Paule Van Eyck competed in Montreal's 1976 Olympics as a member of the Belgian fencing team — the diver was originally a gymnast who was told by coaches she was too tall for that sport.

Her parents encouraged her to try diving.
"At first I didn't want to try. I didn't even want to go to the pool because I loved gymnastics, so I didn't want to quit and I hate being wet, I hate being in the water and I'm always cold," she said.

Van Beilen bounced from 100m final in swim-off

Another day, another drama for Canada's swim team at the Olympic Games.

Tera Van Beilen of Oakville, Ont., made her Olympic debut in the 100-metre breaststroke Sunday, and had to compete in one more race than she'd expected.

The 19-year-old had a swimoff against Alia Atkinson of Jamaica late in the evening, when the Aquatic Centre stands had largely emptied, to determine who would claim the eighth spot in Monday's final.

The two women had identical times and finished tied for eighth in the semifinal, requiring a rare head-to-head almost two hours later to solve the deadlock. Atkinson prevailed, dropping Van Beilen to ninth and one spot out of the final in her third race of the day.

"It was mentally hard coming off a race and knowing you had to do it again," Van Beilen said. "I feel blessed for the opportunity to have swum again.

It wasn't how I would have liked it to turn out. I gave it everything I had."

It was the second strange turn of events for Canada in as many days. Ryan Cochrane thought he would race in the men's 400 freestyle final Saturday, but a disqualification of world and Olympic champion Park Tae-hwan in the heats was

"I tried to get my head in the right place. It was a hard turnaround."

That bumped the Victoria swimmer from the final eight and out of the running for a medal. Cochrane will get another chance in Saturday's 1,500-metre freestyle, which is a distance he won Olympic bronze in four years ago.

Canada emerged from the opening weekend of swim competition still looking for a medal. Their goal is three medals and swimmers in 13 to 15

Beach volleyball. Canada falls to Britain in opener

Annie Martin of Sherbrooke, Que., and Marie-Andree Lessard of Ville LaSalle, Oue., lost their opening preliminary-round match 17-21, 21-14, 15-13 to Britain's Zara Dampney and Shauna Mullin in women's beach volleyball Sunday.

After struggling in the second set, Martin and Lessard appeared to have regained their first-set touch, gaining an 8-5 lead in the third. But the British pair scored six of the next seven points and didn't relinquish the lead again.
"It's unfortunate the match didn't go our way," Martin said. "It was a good match, we had our moments but we made more errors than usual."

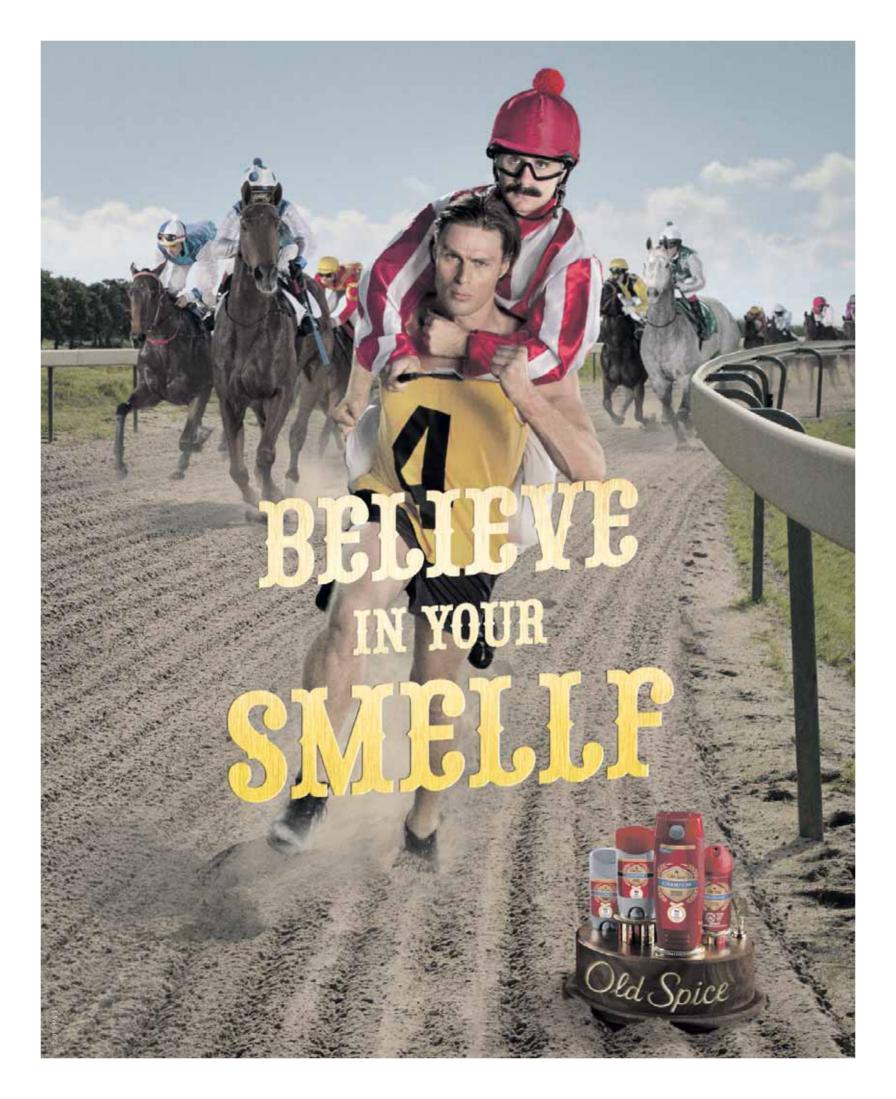

On the winning point, Martin's block on a Dampney smash went wide, sending the 15,000-strong pro-British crowd into a frenzy.

Martin and Lessard enjoyed a great start to the match and built a lead as high as six points midway through the first set.

But it was the complete reverse in the second set, in which Dampney and Mullin led from the start.

French get payback in relay win over U.S.

Swimming. Agnel chases down American star Lochte in final leg to steal gold medal

Ryan Lochte grabbed at the edge of the pool, head down, staring at the water. Michael Phelps glared at the scoreboard, trying to digest the first silver medal of his Olympic career.

Right beside them, the French celebrated.

It was just like 2008 but with the roles reversed.

This time, it was France chasing down the United States and Lochte, no less — to win another riveting relay at the Olympics.

"We got our revenge," French swimmer Clement Lefert said.

With Phelps looking much stronger than he did the night before, the Americans built a commanding lead over the first three legs of the 4x100-metre freestyle relay Sunday.

When Lochte dove into the water on the anchor leg, he was a half-body length ahead of the field and looking to add another gold to his dominating victory Saturday in the 400 individual medlev.

Not so fast.

Or, should we say, not fast enough.

Yannick Agnel, playing the chaser role, sliced through the water and was right on Lochte's shoulder as they made the flip at the far end of the pool. With about 25 metres to go, they were stroke for stroke. But Lochte, who had already competed in 1,200 metres of racing over the first two days, simply didn't have enough left to hold off the towering, 20-year-old Frenchman, one of the sport's real rising stars.

"I gave everything in the last 50 until he cracked," Agnel

Agnel touched in three minutes, 9.93 seconds, having gone exactly one second faster than Lochte over the last two laps. Lochte and the Americans dropped to silver in 3:10.38, while Australia — the favourite - didn't even get a medal. Russia took the bronze in 3:11.41, edging the team from Down Under by 0.22.

Phelps settled for his 17th career medal and completed his collection of Olympic colours, adding a silver to his 14 golds and two bronzes.

Today's Sun-Pluto link means you will need to take care of something you should have taken care of a long time ago. You won't get a third bite of the cherry, so knuckle down and get it right.

∐ Gemini May 22 - June 21

The cosmic trends have been good to you in recent months but don't start thinking you can do as you please and get away with it. Money matters, especially, will need to be dealt with cautiously this week.

June 22 - July 23

If there is something that is worrying you — and there undoubtedly is — you must share your fears with those you love and trust. You don't have to suffer in silence. You don't have to suffer at all.

9 Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Do you really believe in something, or did you copy a friend's idea because it sounded good at the time? If it's the latter today's Sun-Pluto link will force you to face up to its inconsistencies.

W Virgo Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

You may be tempted to break the rules to get ahead of a rival but the planets warn that's not a good idea. Even if it works in the short-term you will lose out in the long-term. It's all about trust.

📤 Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

The grass may look greener on the other side of the fence but you should know by now that looks can be deceptive. Wherever you are at the moment is where you are supposed to be.

PLAY

M Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

A belief you have never questioned before will begin to worry you today. Could it be that it's incorrect? Could it be you have been looking at it from the wrong angle? Yes it could, so look again.

🗖 Sagittarius Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

A relationship is now at a turning point and by the time Thursday's full moon comes around you will have made a fateful decision. Will it be the right one? It's right for you and that's what matters.

り Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Be nice to your rivals today. If nothing else it will confuse them and make them believe you have some dastardly plan up your sleeve. Confusion leads to mistakes: mistakes lead to opportunities.

→ Aquarius Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

The approaching full moon is making you more touchy than usual and if you are observant you will notice that some people seem to be steering clear of you.

H Pisces

Feb. 20 - March 20

Your trust in someone has gone through the floor and you doubt you will ever get back to where you were before. Maybe you're right but time is always a healer and deep down you still have feelings for them. SALLY BROMPTON
